A many splendored thing . . .

THE JAYHAWK

Patricia A. Cantine

November 9, 1955—March 27, 1973

Somewhere in the blue universe
behind a silver constellation
perhaps alone, enfolded within an unnamed galaxy
or beneath the indigo fringe of the broad Zodiac
you begin eternity.

And we, endowed only with mortal wisdom,
guess imperfectly on these high matters.
But you remain still our good friend
lately slipped away.
And though we speak imperfectly
we do so honorably
yet we wonder how it is without butterflies and white roses,
without nutmeg or cinnamon.

We guess that you are free:
that the universe embraces you protects and claims you for her own
and that there, you are not afraid.

So sleep gently, good friend;
rest late into the azure dawn
and when you awake in a ribbon of brightness walk to the edge of the wind and wait . . .
There, soon enough, one by one,
we too shall come.

HONORS CONVOCATION

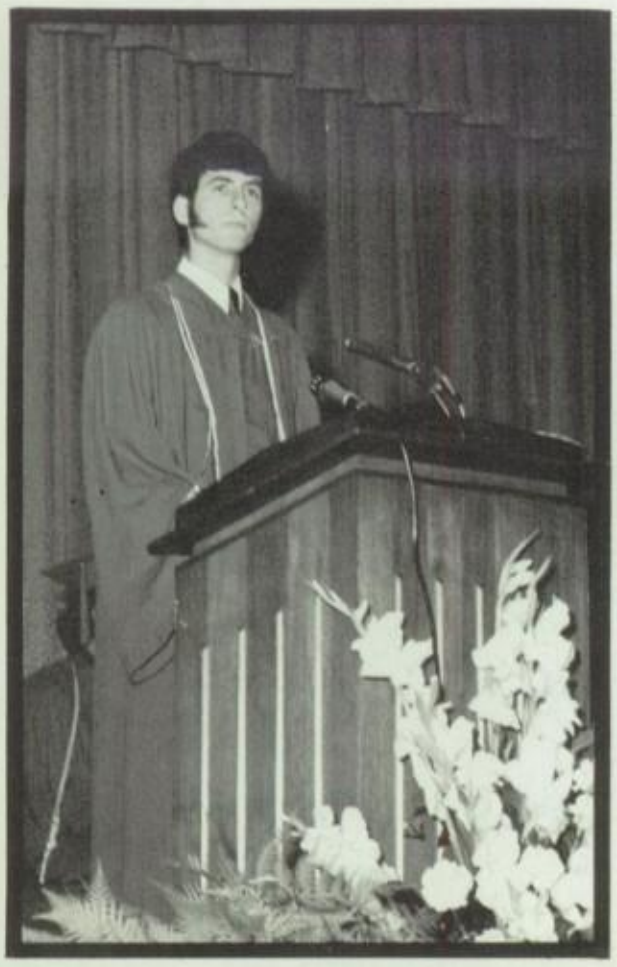
BITTER-SWEET AND BEAUTIFUL

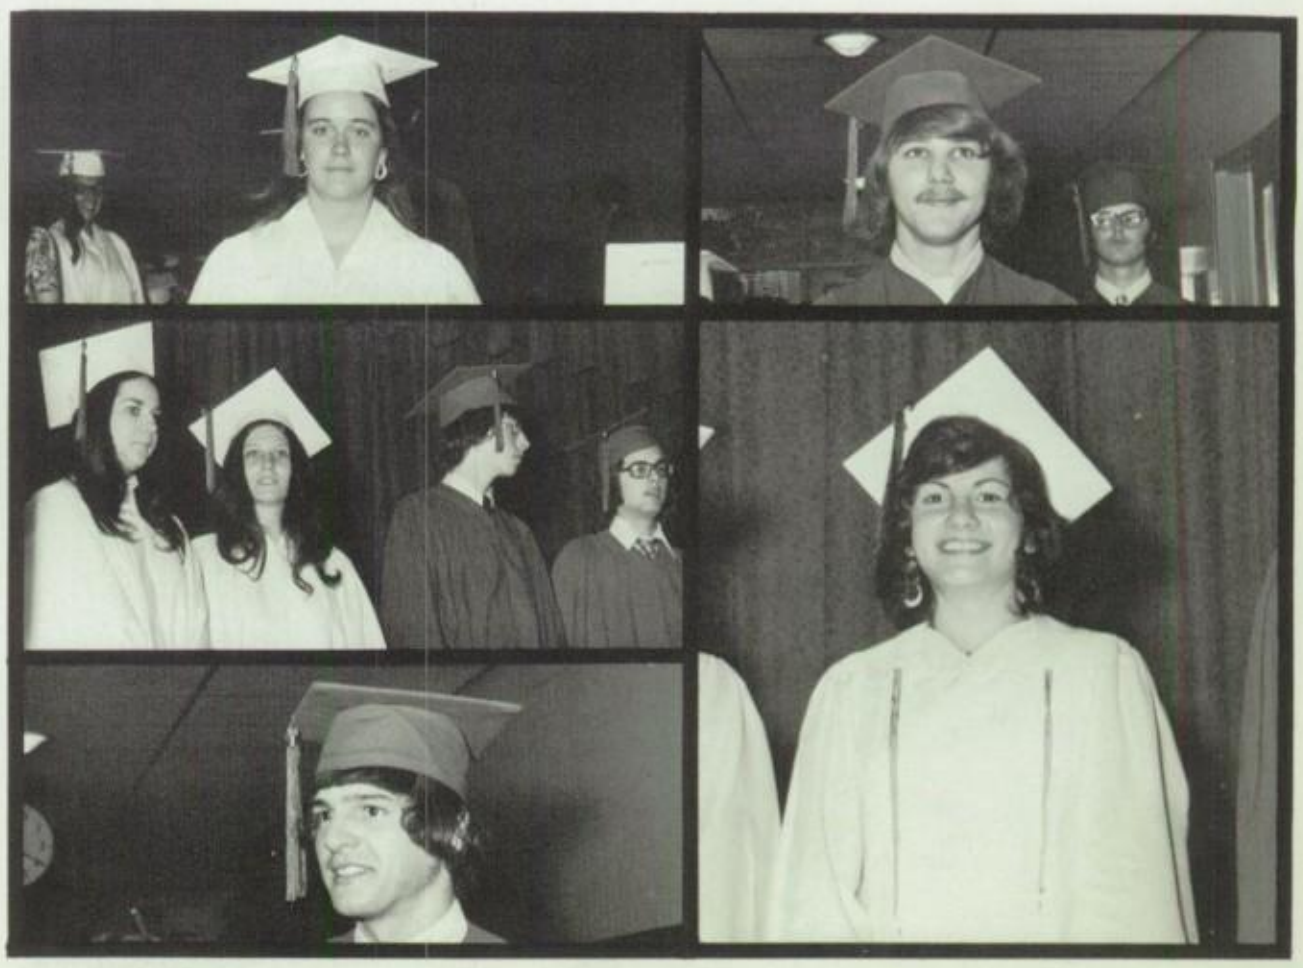
VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

"... not as the third person, but in a one-to-one, face-to-face confrontation. I'm not content just to accept things as others tell me, and if I discover through my experience..."

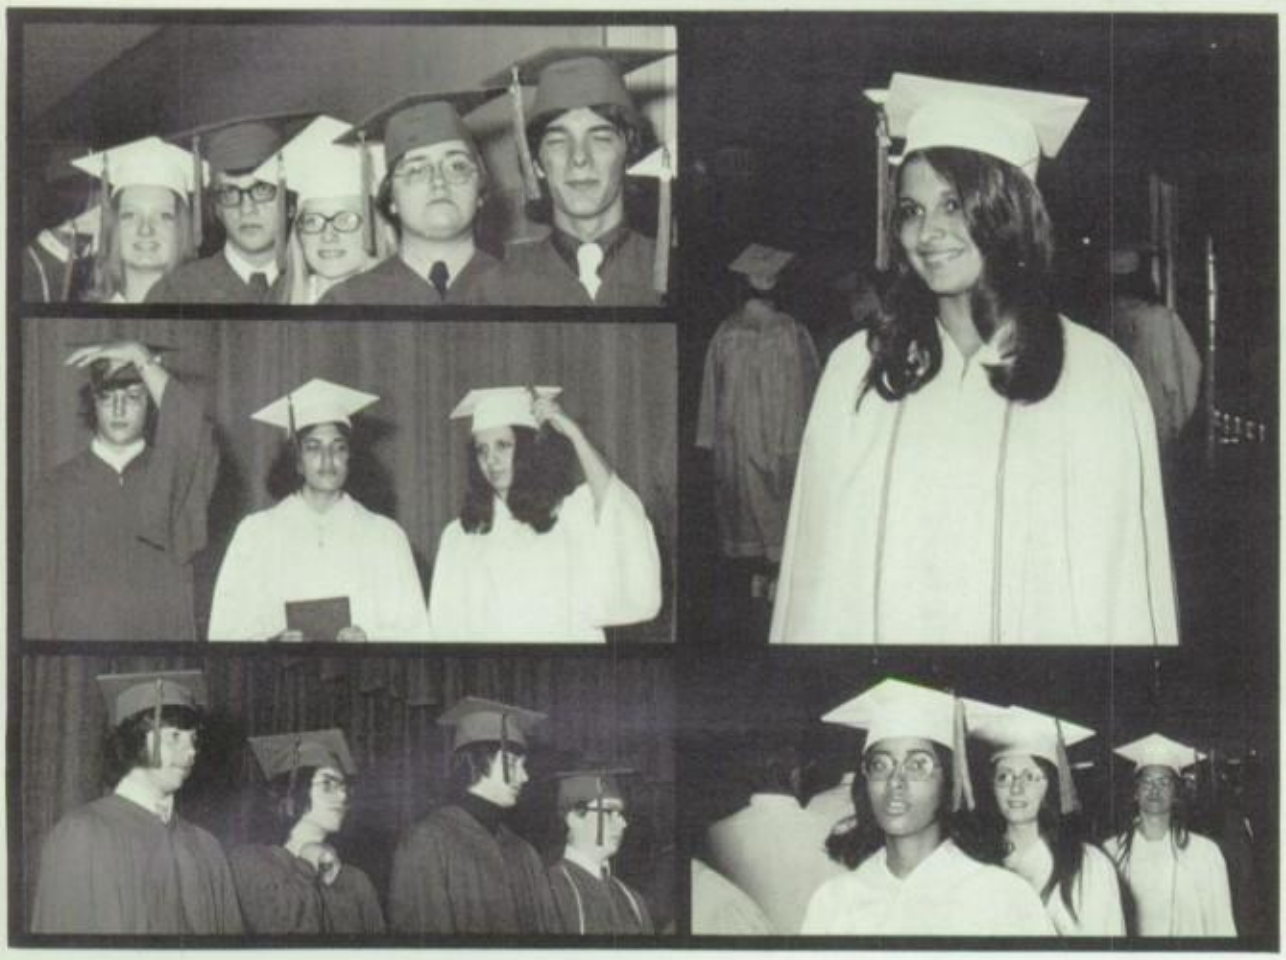
SALUTATORY ADDRESS

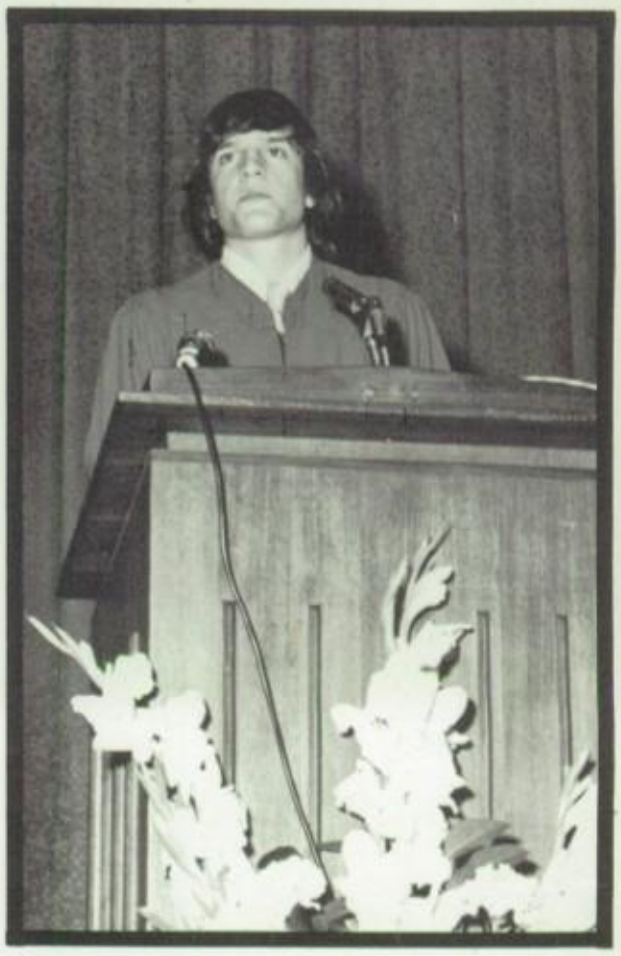
"... no more class parties, proms at the Pub, chess matches at Kiski Prep, or parties at Schaffer's Field. Each of us ends all of that and begins in earnest the race of life."





THIS DAY OF MY YOUTH





THE CLASS PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

"Each of us owes part of his destiny to his town, his school, his friends, his relatives. With this in mind . . . I say a partial good-bye to Jeannette; and I thank her for a fair start."

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

". . . What you remember is gone. Let it be. Our dream is to be free from expectation—to be free from any bondage to the past. Free us to become what is already in our natures to be."
